

Recruiter

Our Recruiters are responsible for developing and maintaining relationships with the nation's top IT talent that will aid our clients in technical contract-based projects or full-time opportunities. Compensation includes a competitive base salary and commission with high earning potential, performance bonuses, reward trip eligibility, health benefits, 401(k), etc. * A technology degree or experience is not necessary to be successful as a Recruiter or Sales Account Executive here at Brooksource.***

A day in the life of a recruiter could include:

- Use creative search avenues along with numerous recruiting tools, provided by Brooksource, to identify niche skilled candidates from various technical backgrounds across the country for technical upgrades, implementations and maintenance projects for a wide range of industries (i.e. healthcare, finance, retail, telecom, government, insurance and many more).
- Perform our due diligence to our clients to provide a full recruiting service; including, conducting thorough in-person interviews, reference/background checks and scheduling technical screens to ensure each candidate meets our professional expectations. Once the talent is identified, our recruiters add the Brooksource personal touch, by coaching the candidate through the on-site client interview process and facilitate a candidate/client introduction.
- Brooksource recruiters maintain a relationship with their candidates who become contractors working on-site at our clients. They uphold these relationships by consistently getting them out to lunch, hand delivering each contractor's pay check weekly to the client site and touching base throughout the duration of their project.
- Attend networking events to continuously enhance your professional relationships within the IT industry

Above all we are looking for leaders. We provide an un-paralleled, interactive training program lead by our top producers and corporate leaders. This will begin your continuous journey of professional and personal development. If you would like to be part of a fast paced, high growth organization, Brooksource is the best place to start and create a long lasting career.
